Chicago-based Zorch is a branded merchandise distributor that uses technology to leverage the capabilities of its supply chain in order to streamline the distribution process. Founded in 2002 on the idea of simplicity through transparency, Zorch saw an opportunity to reinvent the roles a distributor plays by helping large organizations gain ease of process, savings, and brand protection. With a supply chain model like no other, the company has been recognized by Fortune 500 organizations and industry-leading suppliers and embraced by top marketing agencies. Zorch's differentiated approach to servicing corporate programs has gained widespread acceptance in the marketplace and has yielded more than 30 percent revenue growth during the last two years.

Zorch uses a powerful technology application and a streamlined service model, significantly reducing the need for bulk inventory and densely staffed fulfillment teams. Zorch's model also includes high quality, dedicated e-stores for each customer that allow companies to communicate directly with suppliers and create a single source for logos and artwork, dramatically reducing order errors. The e-stores also integrate with customers' procurement systems and freight carrier accounts, reducing order and shipping costs.

Zorch, which provides an engaging culture for its employees, has been named to the Advertising Specialty Institute's "Best Places to Work" honor roll, and was named a Top 40 distributor during 2017. The company also requires its suppliers to meet a stringent set of criteria that include fair labor practices.
